THOMAS BRAUN,

In presenting to his patrons this fourth series of illustrations of his Manufactures, begs to thank them for the many and increasing favours he has received from them, and to assure them that those efforts which have already secured for him their patronage, will be increased to retain it. The present Catalogue will be found to contain an entirely new series of illustrations, and, when added to those already issued, will be found to comprise examples of almost every description of article to which Metal work is applicable. He has added a few plates of Renaissance and Classic Metal Work, and designs for work in any style will be gladly furnished on application. Prices for any of the illustrated articles will be furnished on application, and estimates from Architects' own designs given.

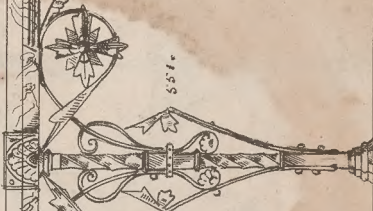

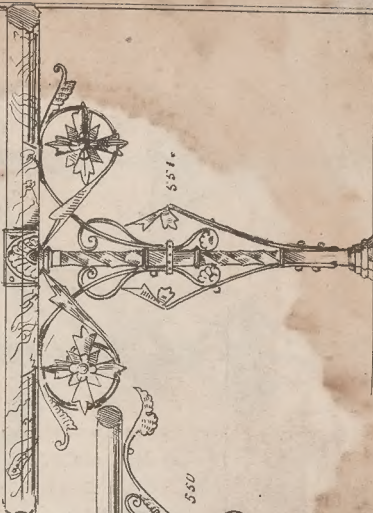

Estimates given for the erection of Green-Houses, Verandahs, Wrought Iron Foliage to Caps, &c.

THOMAS BRAY

THOMAS BRAY, a native of the county of Kent, was born in the year 1717, at the village of St. Andrew, near the town of Maidstone. He was educated at the grammar school of St. Andrew, and afterwards at the university of Oxford, where he took the degree of bachelor of arts in the year 1738. He was then called to the bar, and practised as a lawyer for several years. In the year 1745, he was elected a member of the House of Commons, and continued to be so until the year 1754, when he was elected a member of the House of Lords. He was also a member of the Privy Council, and held several other offices of importance.
